

Marie Sturman

Marie Sturman is Manager, Crown Land Opportunities with the British Columbia Ministry of Agriculture and Lands. Working with all levels of government, First Nations, private sector and key stakeholders, she leads major Crown land projects in order to identify and secure sustainable land uses in a manner that contributes to the economic, societal and environmental goals of government.

As an Account Executive with British Columbia Buildings Corporation, Marie led hundreds of major real estate and corporate transformational projects on behalf of Federal, Provincial, Crown, health care and municipal clients.

Marie has recently been accepted into the Province of B.C.'s Executive Project Director Accelerated Development Programme designed to further develop individuals who lead strategic, complex/mission critical projects at the strategic leadership level.

Marie has over 20 years of senior project and programme management experience, holds a PMP designation and Masters Certificate in Project Management and teaches project management for the British Columbia public sector. She is currently studying to write the LEED AP exam.
